The oldest house in the United States is in Oregon. It is the stump of a tree, twenty feet thick, with a roof on and windows and doors cut in. It is said to be 500 years old.

Senator Blair is not a great man, in fact he is no man at all for the senate, but in some respects he is better than Chandler—less obnoxious politically—and therefore the republicans of New Hampshire probably did the best they could.

The Wisconsin cranberry crop will be from 25 to 30 per cent less than that of last year. The late frosts and prolonged dry weather in May are the causes of failure. Some cranberry growers put the loss more than one-third, but as a rule these early predicted failures are worse than the facts warrant.

The Empress Carlotta, the unfortunate widow of Maximilian, of Mexico, entered her 46th year on Thursday last. The physicians who have observed recently that her health has become excellent, and that the malady which for years has oppressed her brain has been gradually disappearing.

Less than fifteen hundred people attended the opening of the musical festival in Milwaukee, when Theodore Thomas and Mme. Furch-Madi took part in the concert. This was a pretty cold reception to such distinguished musicians. But, then, that is not strange, Milwaukee can't appreciate anything but lager beer.

It has been suggested by some leading republicans, of New York, that inasmuch as President White, of the Cornell university, is going to resign and wants a change of work, he should be nominated for governor this fall. President White is one of the best men in that state, and is so thoroughly capable and honorable that he would make an exceptionally strong candidate.

There are 225 miles of railway in Japan, and the number of miles is yearly increasing. These roads have been built mainly by the Japanese government with native capital. The business results up to the present time have given no cause for dissatisfaction. The people of Japan, unlike the Chinese, are thoroughly in accord with the innovations which 19th century civilization is making in their midst.

The rebel general Longstreet, in his war article in the July Century, after writing of different confederate leaders, says: "Without doubt the greatest man of the rebellion times, the one matchless among forty millions for the peculiar difficulties of the period, was Abraham Lincoln." Twenty years ago, had there been occasion, Gen. Longstreet would have written in very different fashion about the martyr president.

The people of Quincy, Illinois, are in deep disappointment over their democratic postmaster. There were two candidates—Edward Cleveland, a war democrat, who lost a leg in battle, and a bourbon democrat, James H. Richardson, who is a commercial traveler. The bourbon was taken, and the one-legged war democrat was left. The way things have been running lately at Washington, no one should be surprised at the result of the contest at Quincy.

A prominent democratic politician, who has been visiting the president at Washington, is authority for saying that 'the president would regard a republican victory in New York next November as very unfortunate, and that he does not intend to allow this to happen if he can prevent it." A republican victory in New York is something that the democratic administration can't control. The republican's have made all necessary arrangements to carry New York.

The Bartholdi Statue of Liberty was formally received in New York harbor Friday, by the American Pedestal committee. The lower part of the city was decorated with Franco-American bunting, and great enthusiasm prevailed. The naval display was one of the finest ever seen off New York. The sculptor thinks that it will take four months to set the colossal statue upon its feet, but the New York engineers in charge think that six or seven weeks will be an abundance of time and that the statue will be ready for dedication by the middle of August.

The New York farmers have been defeated in their opposition to the oleomargarine law, the court of appeals having decided that the section of the oleomargarine law which prohibits the manufacture or sale of that substance as 'an article of food' is unconstitutional. This decision is placed on the broad ground that any man has a right to invent, manufacture, and sell any substitute for an existing article. It assumes that the article is not injurious or sold under the false pretense of being something else, and the law in question makes no distinction in these respects, nor was there any proof based on such distinction in the case at issue."

Among the strange stories that come from the mountains is one that is told by the Denver News, which is to the effect that a short time ago some Denver physicians killed a terrier by cutting its throat and withdrawing its blood. They let it remain dead for something more than three hours, when they proceeded to force into his system fresh blood drawn from a large Newfoundland. In twenty minutes from the time the first warm blood was injected the terrier sneezed, and in another half hour was sleeping in a warm blanket, apparently recovering from an illness. In two days it was running about, and is now a well and hearty terrier. The democratic party had better keep the address of these physicians. They will probably want them in the course of three years, as their party will be as dead as the Denver terrier by that time.

The June number of the North American Review contained a very able and searching article, over the signature of Gail Hamilton, on prohibition in politics. In the July number of the Review, this same versatile and piquant writer follows up the subject in an article entitled "Prohibition in Practice." The two articles read together, in the words of a valued contemporary, "form an admirable statement of the case, and a conclusive argument, showing that, as a political issue and a basis of separate party action, prohibition has been constantly a failure in suppressing liquor traffic or in restraining intemperance; while, practically, it has been an efficient ally of the whisky power and has directly contributed to every triumph which, through the conflicts and vicissitudes of politics, whisky has gained over temperance, morality and reform." An attentive perusal and study of these valuable contributions will do much to disabuse those who have been misled by the sophistries of the ultra political prohibitionists.

It has long been a saying that "murder will out," and probably Maxwell, who murdered Preller at St. Louis lately has learned the force of the saying. He had a chance to escape forever, but fate was against him. He did not consider the remarkable system of universal telegraphic communication, and with him he carried the evidence of the murder. A number of articles bearing the initials of the murdered man were found in his possession, and his attempt to pass himself off as a Frenchman was completely frustrated by the discovery among his baggage of books and a drawing-case inscribed with his own name at length. His attempt to explain away this damning testimony by pretending that he bought all the articles at San Francisco, shows that he is not gifted with a sufficiently fertile imagination to carry on a role of deception successfully. In fact, all his tricks of disguise have been so poor and transparent that instead of diverting suspicion from him they have served to identify him as he went along. As the case stands, there is good reason to anticipate his conviction on a chain of circumstantial evidence rarely excelled for strength and completeness.

Speaking about the "happy results of Mr. Cleveland's election," what do the independents think of the president's record as a civil service reformer? The country was assured by the Harper's Weekly that no changes in office would be made on political grounds, and that very few changes would be made at all. Well, let us see what sort of a political prophet Mr. Curtis is: Within three months President Cleveland has made more removals than the first six presidents did in a period of forty years: Washington made nine, and all for cause, John Adams nine, and all for non-political reasons, Jefferson thirty-nine, Madison five, Monroe nine, and John Quincy Adams two—seventy-three in all. Mr. Cleveland's average recently is about ten or twelve a day, or more removals in the course of twenty-four hours than most of the early presidents made during their entire terms. Up to date Mr. Cleveland is far ahead even of Jackson, whose average was about two removals per day.

To a man of sober sense, there is nothing strange about these removals. Mr. Cleveland is a rank democrat—not a reformer—and it is quite in keeping with the fitness of things that he should trump up charges against republican office holders and fill their places with hungry democrats. The fault we have to find, if any fault is found at all, is that the independents—the bolting republicans—should insist that the president would not be partisan in distributing public patronage, that honor, ability and faithful service would count more with him than partisanship.

Of course, any man with ordinary perception, can now see that the position of the mugwumps was nonsensical in the extreme. The president is a partisan of the rankest sort, so rank, that he and the postmaster general sent out a confidential circular inviting the democracy to make bogus charges against republican office-holders that they might be kicked out and democrats put in their places. It is reported that Senator Dawes and several other senators, have said that the republicans suspended under this unjust scheme, will be returned to office after the senate meets next December, as the senate will not confirm the president's appointments. But it is not likely that the persons so removed will slide back into office. The better way is to let the president go on with the wholesale business of removals. Give him full scope in such business, let him make as many obnoxious appointments as he pleases; the country will hold him responsible.

SHE HAD TO DO IT.

THE REASON A YOUNG GIRL GIVES FOR ATTEMPTED CRIME.

Mary Klemer Confesses to Poisoning Two Families with Arsenic—Her Father, Mother, and Sister Among Her Victims—Is She Insane?

CHICAGO, June 20.—On June 13 Mary Klemer, a young girl 19 years of age, was held to the criminal court by Justice Kearney, of Evanston, for an attempt to poison the family of Michael Freeror, of Rose Hill. Mrs. Freeror, who is Mary's sister, was the first who suffered from the poison, which had been placed in soup prepared by Mary. When examined by a doctor, it was found that she had put arsenic in the soup. Before going to live with the Freerers the accused had lived with her father, brother and a sister near Dubuque, Iowa, and the sudden death, unaccounted for at the time, of all of them, is now traced back to poison administered by the sister who tried to poison the Freeror family. Mary Klemer has been in the county jail since June 13. Until Friday she had been very composed and reticent, refusing to say anything concerning the crime except that she was innocent of it. Friday evening a lady friend visited her, and shortly after a Catholic priest, and it is said she made to them a confession of her crimes. Soon after doing so she became so excited and hysterical that chloral was administered to quiet her, and all Friday night she was very restless and so oblivious to external matters as to be unable to give an intelligent answer to any questions asked her. In her confession she admitted, it is claimed, that she had poisoned her family in Dubuque and also attempted the poisoning of the Freeror family. She had to do it, she said, and she could not help it. She had no reason for taking their lives, except an impulse which she could not control. It is believed she herself took some of the arsenic she administered to the others, and is now suffering from the effects of it.

The girl's record since leaving Dubuque has been investigated, and it is said shows that she has of late led a rather loose life. She would occasionally come to Chicago and remain here three or four days at a time, explaining her absence by saying that she was staying with friends. She was traced to the Grand Pacific and other places of unusual resort for girls in her station in life. Some people declare the girl is insane.

Illinois Legislation.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 20.—Quinn's anti-convict labor bill was passed by the house Friday upon a reconsideration of the vote by which it was defeated Thursday. A bill to prohibit any unlicensed liquor vendor from selling intoxicants in less quantities than five-gallon original packages within two miles of any town, village, church, school-house, or fair grounds, or to give the same away, was passed. The bill is very stringent and covers all shifts and devices for disposing of liquor, and provides heavy penalties. An appropriation of $5,000 was made to continue the Illinois exhibit at Illinois; also a bill further protecting game.

The senate passed the tax levy bill, and a resolution deploring the death of Victor Hugo, and adjourned until Monday.

The report of the house investigating committee was not presented.

A Beautiful Snake Charmer's Desperation.

BALTIMORE, June 20.—A woman, known as Mrs. Dobrick, made an attempt at suicide at an early hour Friday morning at her lodgings, 8 East Baltimore street, by shooting herself in her head. The police sergeant on that beat was informed, but by the time he reached the place the injured woman had been removed in a carriage, whither the landlady did not know. After a vigorous search a beautiful young girl of 19 years was found at 189 Conway street, with a bullet hole at the base of her right ear. Her right name is Bessie Rauch. She has, until recently, been a snake charmer, and traveled with Forepaugh's circus, and afterward went with Barnum. Later she performed in dime museums and adopted the alias of "Madame Marlo." She said she was disheartened at the ill-luck which befell her lately. Her injuries are serious.

Pay-Day in the Turkish Army.

[Constantinople Letter.]

One evening an officer bustled into the cabin of a Bosphorus steamer, just after it had left port, and, accosting a clerk who was dozing at the table:

"Oh, here you are."

"Well, have you the money?"

"Yes."

"Count it out."

Then for a few minutes there was the chink of small coin, as one after another, each little pile, carefully scrutinized in the waning light, was laid aside. At last, with considerable care, about a dozen piles were made, and the officer leaned back on the sofa and nursed his knees.

"Call the men in." And forthwith a sergeant and his men came in, in turn, to receive each a pile of coin. "There, my boy, there is your money for to-day. There, my son, is yours, and there is some more for the tall fellow with a beard that lives over by the dried-fruit market. Now go and be sure and get your bath to-morrow." So the comments went until the last two piles were reached, when the officer began to fear that more would come in than could be supplied. He repeated very carefully: "I have only got enough for two more. Let the rest wait."

Such is pay-day in the Turkish army.

Danger of Delay.

[Attleboro Advocate.]

A gentleman with his wife, lately visited one of the Attleboro cemeteries with one of the directors of the place, for the purpose of selecting a lot. After inquiring the price he asked if he must pay in advance, and, got the reply, "Well, no, I guess you are good for it, only if you don't pay right down you will be expected to bury some of your folks within two years."

The Ideal and the Practical.

[Fall River Advance.]

Poetry, a waxed moustache, mystery, long hair and a sweet tenor voice will often make a woman feel as if there was only a sheet of tissue paper between heaven and herself, but it is the man with the wart on his nose and six figures in his bank balance who scoops her in and makes her happy ever afterwards.

In Fact, He Knows More.

[Bob Burdette.]

Goaded by jealousy, a husband out in Ohio shot a professor of roller skating in the head. The physicians left the bullet where it was imbedded, plugged the hole up with a cork, and the professor now skates as well and knows as much as ever he did.

It is estimated that 1,300 new families settled during the past winter in Florida as permanent residents.

Cold-Blooded Murder at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 20.—This city was the scene of a cold-blooded murder Friday. While T. J. Law, owner of barges on the river, was talking with a woman in her dooryard, Otto Lavensky, a Pole, shot him through the back killing him instantly. Last April Lavensky's son, while working on Law's barge, fell overboard and was drowned. Lavensky swore vengeance on Law, and procuring a gun, loaded it with ball and buckshot, and laid in wait for his victim. Lavensky confessed his crime when arrested and manifested no regret. The murderer is liable to be lynched.

Robbing a Church and Parsonage.

MARION, N. J., June 20.—The parsonage and church of the Rev. Dr. Harcourt were robbed Friday afternoon. By means of a ladder the thieves entered the sleeping-room of the parson's daughter, who was taking a nap. They chloroformed her, and carried off a gold watch, some minor trinkets, and silverware from the dining-room. They then entered the church, broke open the "mite" boxes, and abstracted $15. Dr. Harcourt is the minister who was called a liar in his church by the mate of the Seawanhaka, on account of his misstatements from the pulpit.

Every Bullet Had Its Billet.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 20.—A News special from Corvallis, Ore., says a fight occurred in McTimmon's saloon Friday afternoon between John Monsinger, Nick Beason and Sid Moore. McTimmons shot into the crowd four times, hitting Beason in the stomach, Monsinger in the face and a looker-on named Taylor in the hip. Deputy Sheriff Hinkle who was in a livery stable across the street, was also hit in the breast by a spent ball, making five men shot by four bullets. Two are considered dangerously wounded.

Will Test the Bank Tax.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Mr. William Dowd, president of the Bank of North America, says that a joint suit will probably be instituted to restrain the commissioners from collecting taxes on national bank shares assessed for the current year. The general opinion of bank officers is in favor of a joint suit as recommended by the committee of the clearing house.

CONSULAR REFORM.

MANNING AND BAYARD LOOKING INTO A CUSTOMS DIFFICULTY.

Trying to Prevent Undervaluation of Foreign Goods—John Roach on the Dolphin—Morrison's Influence with the Administration.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—Secretaries Bayard and Manning are in consultation on the subject of extensive and important changes in the instructions to consular officers regarding valuations of exportations from the ports at which they are stationed to the United States, the signing of invoices, etc. The secretaries take the ground that the consular service is no less important in protecting the revenues of this country than is the customs service, so-called, and that a foreign representative has no higher function than to guard against frauds upon the revenue of this country through undervaluations and other customs abuses. The present instructions direct consular officers to certify to the correctness of invoices and then to report by letter or telegraph if they believe the invoice to be incorrect. The result of this practice is that the sworn and sealed statement of the consul as to the accuracy of the invoice is accepted and his informal and unsworn statement of fraud disregarded. Secretary Bayard believes that the present regulations involve constant violations of the law making it a penal offense for consular officers to certify to invoices which they believe to be inaccurate. The new regulations will reverse the present instructions.

Another movement now being made is with a view of securing an arrangement with all the leading commercial powers, by which consul officers may be able to administer oaths which will be binding under the law of the country in which they are taken. Such an arrangement is in force with Great Britain, but with no other foreign power.

A treasury official says that of the invoices from Great Britain, to which the oaths involve the pains and penalties of perjury, ninety-five out of 100 are correct, while of those from the continent, to which the oaths are a meaningless formality, nearly the same proportion are false.

Some Important Appointments.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—The president settled an Illinois office Friday by the appointment of Herman S. Weber to the marshalship of the southern district. Other selections were: William B. Flemming, of Kentucky, to be associate justice of the supreme court of the Territory of New Mexico; William A. Day, of Illinois, to be second auditor of the treasury; Robert W. Banks to be collector of internal revenue for the district of Mississippi; J. P. Imboden, of Georgia, to be consul of the United States at Tuscaran, Honduras; Shubrick Heyward, of Maryland, to be marshal of the consular court of the United States at Kanagwa, Japan.

Mr. William A. Day, of Illinois, who was appointed second auditor of the treasury, is a particular friend of Representative Morrison. He is a prominent lawyer in Champaign, Ills., has been mayor of that town and a member of the legislature. He is a man, Mr. Morrison says, who needed no recommendations.

H. G. Weber, who was appointed United States marshal for the southern district of Illinois, is a friend of Representative Morrison and his appointment is also credited to Mr. Morrison's influence.

Repairing the Top of the Monument.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—The roof stone of the Washington monument, which was broken and displaced from its proper position by lightning two weeks ago, was replaced, Friday, in its proper position with but little difficulty. Ropes were stretched around the top of the monument, wedges were driven between them and the solid masonry, and by tapping the broken stone with a maul it was pressed into place. The four men engaged, Thursday, in building the scaffold around the top of the monument, and Friday in replacing the fractured stone, were watched by thousands of people in different parts of the city—some at convenient distances in the monument grounds—and there was probably not a pair of glasses or a spy-glass in the city not in use by the thousands who devoted attention to the matter. New lightning rods and fixtures are to be placed on the pyramidal roof immediately.

Roach Has a Word to Say.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—John Roach, the ship-builder, was Friday asked what he thought of the report of the naval advisory board, concerning the dispatch boat Dolphin. "It is simply a difference of opinion between two boards of experts. The vessel was constructed under the supervision of a legally appointed board of seven persons. She was designed in all her details of speed and power by them, and I had not discretionary power to alter even a single bolt in her, and I challenge any of these seven gentlemen to say that I deviated one iota from the contract. Every bit of machinery used was inspected by the government officials, and put together under the most rigid scrutiny. The vessel was accepted and approved by that board. The secretary of the navy saw fit to appoint another board of three persons, and their report condemned the vessel."

West Point Punishment for Insubordination.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—Cadet Davidson, who was court-martialed at West Point for insubordination in disobeying the orders of one of the tile closers—a second classman—during the last skirmish drill at West Point, has been sentenced to be confined at the military academy during the summer encampment and not to receive his diploma until the expiration of his sentence Aug. 28. The effect of this is to reduce him in rank from his class number, 13, to the foot of the class, as he will not be appointed in the army until released.

On a Tour of Economy.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—Commodore Harmony, chief of the bureau of yards and docks, left Washington Thursday night for Norfolk, Va. He will inspect the navy yards there and then go to the other yards on the Atlantic and inspect them with a view to reporting in what way expenses in them may be reduced.

Looking for Death Momentarily.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—At midnight Friday the condition of Judge T. W. Bartley, of Ohio, was unchanged. His death is looked for at any moment.

The condition of Hon. R. T. Merrick at midnight was still very critical, the patient being unconscious.

Want an Official Inquiry.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 20.—It is understood that the naval advisory board will request Secretary Whitney to appoint a court of inquiry to investigate their official action in connection with the construction of the Dolphin.

A dispatch from Stillwater, Minn., states that Senator Sabin is dangerously ill.

An End to Bone Scraping

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctor told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at 50 cents a bottle, and Bucklin's Arnica Salve at 25c per box by F. Sherer & Co.

Why Loring Transferred His Property.

BOSTON, June 20.—John A. Loring was seen by a representative of the United Press Friday in reference to the statement of The Washington Post, that Dr. Loring had recently transferred property to him. "The report of the conveyance to me," said Mr. Loring, "is entirely true, but it is in this way: This property, together with real estate in Salem and elsewhere, was devised by the will of an aged uncle and aunt to the former Mrs. Loring, to be held in trust for her and her daughter after her death. Dr. Loring had no fee in the property, but was simply a trustee for his daughter. Some new family relations having arisen, it was thought best that I should be made trustee of the property in his place, and the transfer was accordingly made."

Too Comprehensive in His Politics.

RACINE, Wis., June 20.—Senator Charles Jonas, who was recently appointed to Prague, has received a communication from the state department announcing that Count Taafe, of Austria, objected to his appointment on account of his being too much mixed up in Austrian politics and because, as a journalist in Racine, he had given expression to sentiments hostile to Austria.

HIS SHADOW GROWN LESS.

The Old Soldier Makes a Grim Joke—A Slight Improvement.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, N. Y., June 20.—Thursday night and again Friday morning Dr. Newman conducted a service of prayer at the Grant cottage, the entire family gathering about the general during the devotional exercises. Pastor Newman's words of encouragement were listened to with deep attention by all. Buoyed up by the assuring and affectionate words of the clergyman, the family, and especially the general, prized his visit to the fullest extent. Dr. Newman says that Gen. Grant freely communicated to him on Wednesday evening, by writing, as follows:

"I am exceedingly pleased with this delightful mountain air. The doctors tell me that my condition is better, but I do not think that it is so."

Dr. Newman, in conversing with Gen. Grant, relative to his condition, encouraged the suffering hero by saying that great men did not die on the top of mountains—Moses received the laws on a mountain; Elisha was protected from his enemies while resting on a mountain, and Christ was transfigured on the top of a mountain.

In motioning a few valued friends to a chair by his side the general indited on a paper tablet: "Come and sit down and let us have a good old-fashioned talk; but you must do all the talking." The general handed the slip to his visitors, while a wan smile swept over his face.

Judge Henry Hilton and his son James called on the general and paid their respects. The judge and the general clasped each others hand warmly in greeting.

Dr. John P. Gray, superintendent of the Utica insane asylum, was included among the prominent visitors who paid their respects to the general in the afternoon. The doctor weighs about 250 pounds. When Gen. Grant noticed Dr. Gray coming toward the cottage he hastily wrote:

"Doctor, your shadow has grown no less since I saw you in Utica. Mine has reduced materially. U. S. GRANT.

"June 19, 1885."

The general (by writing) said that he had lost fifty pounds in weight.

The general looked much better Friday. He walked without the aid of his staff at times, but frequently sat down. At one time when there was a crowd of visitors looking on, the general walked away, swinging his stick in his right hand. He went no further than the end of the piazza, when he sat down. He looked fatigued, and any one could notice his breast heave. He still shows a great deal of determination and grit.

Gen. Grant sat on the porch until quite late in the evening, retiring at 9 o'clock. The family thinks the day brought no change in his condition, except that he had less depression of spirits than for a day or two.

Dr. Douglas thought the day had brought an improvement in almost every respect, the neck swelling having subsided somewhat and the threatening appearance of the throat having been slightly allayed.

LOOKING FOR BIG BEAR'S CAPTURE.

No News from Middleton—Riel Wants His Trial in Quebec.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 20.—Winnipeg dispatches from the front indicates that Big Bear's capture may be looked for any day. No word has been received from Middleton for several days, and his position is unknown. Some anxiety is felt on his behalf, but many think he may have overtaken and joined Strange's column.

A Regina dispatch says that forty prisoners, including Maxime Lepine, Alexander Fisher, Philip Garneau, Guardepuy, Monkman and White Cap, under a strong escort of police, have arrived from Batouche and Humboldt. Accommodation in the guardroom was insufficient and a majority will be guarded in tents at the barracks.

Riel has telegraphed to his friends in Quebec asking them to apply for trial in the province of Quebec on the ground that he would obtain more justice, besides saving expense. He spends a great deal of time in writing to his family and to his counsel. He still looks dejected, but is reported to be hopeful as to the result. Riel will be tried for treason under English statutes of Edward III.

Trying to Organize a Pool.

CINCINNATI, June 20.—The managers of the eastern and western railway lines held a meeting at the Grand hotel Friday with closed doors. The object of the meeting was to form an association of railroads operating west of the termini of the trunk lines, east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio river to be known as the Central Traffic association. The object of the association is similar to that of other pools. The greater part of the day was spent in balloting for a commissioner. The names of Hugh N. Riddle, Judge Cooley, and R. C. Vilas were placed in nomination and resulted in no choice. The meeting then adjourned to meet at Niagara Falls Thursday, July 2.

Obedience Is Rome's First Law.

PARIS, June 23.—The pope has written a sharp letter to Cardinal Guibert, archbishop of Paris, calling attention to the latters' criticisms of the rulings of Cardinal Pitra upon the affairs of the church in France. His holiness deplores the practice, unhappily so common among the clergy, of questioning the mandates of their superiors, and says: "Catholics are nowhere authorized to sit in judgment upon the actions or motives of the holy see. Obedience to its commands is their first duty." The pope in conclusion laments the recent action of the French authorities in secularizing and desecrating the Pantheon.

The Van Zandt Captures a Grand Duke.

BERLIN, June 20.—It is announced that a marriage engagement exists between Miss Van Zandt, the American prima donna, and a Russian grand duke. The story is that Miss Zandt met her royal lover while she was filling an engagement in St. Petersburg. She was followed by him to London, where the betrothal took place quite recently.

Riot in Berlin.

BERLIN, June 20.—A large number of stone masons who are on strike congregated in the streets Friday for the purpose of preventing other workmen from taking their places. An attempt on the part of the police to disperse them resulted in a riot in which several of the strikers were injured. Many arrests were made and the crowd was driven away.

The Guyandotte Raised.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The steamer Guyandotte, of the Old Dominion line, which was sunk at her pier Thursday night by the carelessness of a fireman leaving the "sea cock" open, was raised Friday and her water-soaked cargo discharged. The company state that they do not intend to prosecute the offending fireman.

BETTING STRICTLY PROHIBITED

But the Bookmakers Busy—Sporting News from the Leading Points.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Large posters announcing that betting was strictly prohibited adorned the walls at the Brighton Beach race track Friday. Inside the track, however, speculators were accomodated by a few enterprising bookmakers, who laid all sorts of adds on the simple nod of the head. The coupon system of speculation brought to notice some days ago, will be put in operation on Monday.

First race, ¾ mile; Comique won, Walter H. second, Virgilia third; time, 1:19. Second race, 1⅛ miles; Emmet won, Warren Lewis second, Farragut third; time, 1:58¼. Cornell Wins the Childs' Cup.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—The four-oared shell race on the Upper Schuylkill Friday afternoon between the University, of Philadelphia, and the Cornell, of New York, crews, for the Childs' cup, was won by the latter, by one and a half lengths, in 8 minutes and 51 seconds, the University crew crossing the line three and one-half seconds later. The course was from Lafayette station to Shawmont, one and one-half miles, straightaway. The University crew took water first at the start and led for the first 100 yards, when they were overhauled and passed by their competitors. At the mile-post Cornell led by two lengths, when the University crew spurted and gained slightly, but were unable to entirely close the daylight between the shells.

The cup was won by the Columbia crew in 1880, the Princeton in 1881, the University in 1882, 1883 and 1884.

The race attracted a great crowd, and considerable disappointment was manifested over the failure of the Philadelphia crew to retain the trophy.

The Indianapolis Schutzenfest.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 20.—The feature of the schutzenfest Friday was the team contest, which was won by Milwaukee, with a score of 1,193 out of a possible 1,500. The highest individual score was made by C. Berg, of Davenport, 217 out of a possible 250. W. L. Wegner, of Princeton, Ills., has won the contest on the union target, with a score of 69.

Base Ball.

CHICAGO, June 20.—League ball games Friday were as follows: At Chicago—Buffalo 8, Chicago 9; at Philadelphia—New York 6, Philadelphia 3; at St. Louis—Detroit 0, St. Louis 3; at Providence—Boston 0, Providence 5. Other games: At New York—Metropolitans 8, Cincinnati 10.

A STYLISH AND DASHING THIEF

His Operations in Milwaukee and Their Sudden End.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 20.—Two months ago J. A. Beardley, Jr., representing himself as the manager of the board of trade in Boston, came here and went to the Plankinton house. He was a dashing fellow and attracted considerable attention. He obtained access to some of the best families and was very attentive to a young lady of social prominence. Friday he was arrested for burglary. He is accused of beating several hotels, and in one of them broke open a trunk and stole money and clothes. Lack of proof then prevented his arrest, but the police learned later that he had pawned a watch belonging to a young lady. He was arrested, and confessed to several thefts. Letters found on his person indicate that he is well connected at Boston. He owes many people here, especially livery men.

The British Cabinet Hitch.

LONDON, June 20.—Nothing new has been developed in the governmental crisis. The Liberal papers counsel the Liberals to stand firm, while the Tory journals declare that there must be no surrender on the part of the Conservatives. The parleying between the two parties is now being conducted through the medium of the queen.

The Standard exults over the postponement in the house of lords of the redistribution bill and says Lord Salisbury has proved himself one too many for the Liberals. The News indignantly declares that the "haughty peer" (Salisbury) has trampled upon the rights of the people, and deliberately insulted the country. The Times moderately regrets the action of the house of lords, but indulges in no speculation as to the result.

Another Colliery Strike.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 20.—All the miners in the Sunday Creek valley, numbering about 500 men, went out on a strike Thursday for 60 cents. These miners received 70 cents all during the Hocking valley strike. After the Hocking valley miners went to work at 40 cents the Sunday Creek Valley company proposed to pay 50 cents to their men, which was agreed to. On April 1, they were compelled to again reduce the rates to 40 cents, in order to compete with the Hocking Valley company, which has resulted in a strike. The officials say that the miners will return to work in a few days, while the miners claim they will hold out until the bitter end.

WELCOME LIBERTY!

DONE IN COPPER AND PACKED IN BOXES INNUMERABLE,

She Makes Her Triumphant Entry Into the Land of the Free—A Brilliant Naval Spectacle in New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The steamer Isere, bearing the great French gift of "Liberty Enlightening the World," was welcomed to New York Friday in a manner far exceeding the expectations of its most ardent friends. The day itself was all that could be desired, and the pageant on both land and water was one of the most brilliant New York has witnessed in many years. Lower Broadway at an early hour in the morning was being put in readiness for the coming of the guests. The French tri-color, "blue to mast and blood to the last," hung side by side with the stars and stripes, while bunting of every kind and color floated from almost every building from the city hall to the Battery. Crowds of people lined the curbs and filled the windows of the tall Broadway stores, and Battery park was thronged. The bay was full of vessels of all kinds, all displaying yards of bunting, while in the lower bay the white-hulled Isere, her deck shaded by the French colors, was the center of attraction.

At 8:30 a large crowd had assembled in front of the Wall street ferry whence the Atlantic was to start with the city officials and the members of the various committees. It was after 9 before she left the slip and headed down the harbor. Among the passengers were the board of aldermen, with Adolph L. Sanger at their head; Mayor Grace, Senator Evarts, the president of the American committee; Gen. Stone, and a host of New York and Brooklyn officials. The day was hot, and as the Atlantic made her way out into the harbor a light haze hung over the water and the shores limiting the view and rendering indistinct the outlines of the distant shipping. The Minnesota was soon descried at her moorings, below Governor's island, dressed in gay bunting from mast-head to water-line. At 10:30 the Atlantic arrived in Gravesend bay.

A GRAND SCENE.

The sight was a novel and picturesque one. Far in toward the shore lay the Isere, while out in the channel were the Dispatch with Commodore Chandler and Secretary Whitney, the Omaha and LaFlore. They were soon joined by the Powhattan. A crowd of excursion steamers and tugs clustered about the vessel which bore the statue. Their triple decks were black with men and women, who flocked to the side from which the best view of the Isere could be obtained, until the vessels seemed on the point of capsizing. The sailors of the Isere in white linen uniform with blue collars appeared on deck and waved their hats vigorously as they heard the strains of the French national air. Commander De Saune appeared smiling, and bowing welcome to the city fathers. The mayor and other gentlemen boarded the Isere, and an informal reception followed.

THE FLEET IN MOTION.

At 10:30 the flotilla was all assembled. It consisted wholly of steam craft. By actual count there were forty-seven boats of all classes. The United States steamer Dispatch, bearing the broad pennant of Commodore Chandler, and having Secretary Whitney aboard, held the head of the line, and at 10:45 o'clock the signal flag to start was dipped. Twenty seamen manned the winch of the Isere, and her anchor was soon raised, and she returned the answering signal for the start. The Dispatch led the van, followed by the Powhattan, Omaha and Alliance. The La Flore came next, and close to her rudder the Isere. Then followed the Atlantic and the volunteers, not in line, but wedged in wherever they could get. Hardly was the procession under way before a little ring of smoke shot out from the side of the Powhattan and some seconds later the report of a cannon was heard. Then came others in quick succession, until the Powhattan was sailing in a cloud of her own making and only her spars could be seen towering above the smoke of her guns. The French flagship reserved her fire, but replied while the echo of the last shot of the Alliance was still reverberating between the hills on each side. When she did begin it was with a noticeable difference in time. Her twenty-one guns were fired in just sixty-one seconds. By this time the forts were reached and the heavy gun of Fort Hamilton renewed the music. It received its answer from Fort Tompkins, the La Flore again responding. On entering the upper bay it was seen that many crafts had refrained from active participation below, but were waiting to take their places in the flotilla as it passed into smoother water. By this time a sail-filling breeze had sprung up, and a fleet of yachts was added to the marine column. These were re-enforced seemingly by every craft the harbor contained that was propelled by steam. Those joined the procession as close to one another as safety allowed, and made a remarkable spectacle, filling up the broad roadstead with vessels, every one of which displayed its store of bunting. One after another the United States steamers reached the appointed place and were dressed into line of battle. As the La Flore was preparing to drop her anchor the Minnesota opened fire in salute, the French flagship replying. Fort Columbus then took up the firing, the detonation of its heavy guns reverberating in seemingly incessant repetition against the sides of the numerous vessels. Fort Wood was the last to salute. When its last gun had been fired as if by preconcerted arrangement, every steam whistle—and not less than 400 were around—opened, and for five minutes the air was rent with their air-piercing sound.

Meanwhile the officers of the Isere were standing on the bridge viewing the spectacle with unaffected delight and admiration. As the Isere dropped her anchor off the east shore of Bedloe's island the steam whistles again began to blow, and for a time

PANDEMONIUM REIGNED.

Then a small steamer was brought alongside of the Isere, and her officers went with the members of the pedestal committee to look after the work. The island was crowded with spectators, and four French choral societies were on the grounds ready to welcome the visitors with banners and songs.

Meantime the three regiments of militia, the Rochambeau guards and Garde Lafayette, in the uniform of the French army, were awaiting the arrival of the visitors at Whitehall. A little after 2 o'clock the chants of the French societies were heard as their steamers drew up at the barge office wharf. The procession started up Broadway headed by the mounted police.

At the city hall the guests were received, and addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor Grace, President Sanger, of the board of aldermen, and F. R. Coudert. After the addresses were concluded the guests enjoyed a luncheon in the governor's room. Managers Wallack and McCaull have tendered a reception to the officers of the French vessel, which has been accepted.

Eating is a Torture,

And sleep often a mere travesty of repose, to the dyspeptic. Appetite is correspondingly impaired by this most prevalent of maladies, and headaches, biliousness, constipation, poverty of the blood, loss of flesh and of vitality, and a thousand annoying and indescribable sensations are its concommitants. It is, moreover, the progenitor of numerous and formidable bodily disorders. Obstinate as it is, however, its complete eradication may be effected by the persistent use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, medicine which communicates both vigor and regularity to the organs of digestion and secretion, relaxes the bowels gently but thoroughly, enriches and purifies the blood, promotes the appetite, and gives tranquility to the nervous system. Persons of weakly constitution and physique, who use this superb tonic infallibly derive from it the stamina of which they stand so much in need, and it is invariably successful in remedying and preventing malarial diseases.

Arrested for Murdering Three Chinamen.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 20.—In 1882 "Al" Gallaway reported having found on Camas creek, Idaho, the bodies of three murdered Chinese miners. Search was made and the bodies were discovered. One John Oboy was tried for the murder and acquitted. Evidence at his trial directed suspicion toward Gallaway, who was found to have a large quantity of gold dust which he could not account for, and a ring belonging to one of the Chinamen. Gallaway was indicted but escaped arrest. Thursday he was arrested at White Bird, Salmon river.

The Sunday Question in Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Judge Gardner, at the instance of the Garfield park commissioners, has granted an injunction restraining William Emmett, lessee of the Chicago Driving park, from giving any Sunday racing or other entertainments at the Driving park on Sunday, and preventing the sale of liquors there. Two days ago Mr. Emmett, in an interview with the mayor, consented to cease giving Sunday performances.

Briefiets.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Clemens returned to-day from their northern trip.

—Rev. Edward Salmon, of Beloit, will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church to-morrow morning.

—"Hidden Hand" at the opera house this evening—the last chance to witness a performance by the Madison square company this season.

—James Youngclause, residing in the town of Harmony, died at noon to-day. The funeral will be held at the house, on Tuesday afternoon, at two o'clock.

—A very fair audience, mostly of children, witnessed the matinee at the opera house this afternoon. The play was Esmerelda and was presented in a creditable manner.

—This afternoon the "clouds rolled by," the sun for a time poured forth exceedingly warm; in fact, it was so hot that many feared the excessive heat of the sun would prove disastrous to the newly set tobacco plants.

—The Kenosha Coaching club arrived in Janesville at 4 p. m., dashing up to the Myers house in good style, not with their tally-ho, but in the Myers house 'bus, having come by train from Madison. Wonder where the grand tally-ho coach is?

—C. V. Donaldson and Alonzo Grey, cadets in the United States military academy at West Point, are in the city, the guests of the family of Captain J. B. Lagrange. The young gentlemen are on their way home in Iowa, to spend their summer vacation.

—To-day is motion day in the circuit court and no case will be called until the 22d. The first on the docket is that of Russel against the Janesville pickle company, with William Ruger for the defendant, and William Smith and William Street for the plaintiff,

—The Fourth of July committees will meet at the council chamber on Tuesday evening next, for the purpose of hearing the report of the finance committee, and making the necessary appropriations to carry out the detailed arrangements. A full attendance of all the committees is requested,

—Charles H. Sargent, son of the late W. H. Sargent, graduates in the Latin and Scientific course of the Aurora (Illinois) seminary on Wednesday next, taking one of the honors of the class. Mr. Sargent intends entering one of the eastern colleges to complete his education. His home is at Cary, Illinois.

—Mr. Will H. Wingate, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wingate, now of Minneapolis, but formerly of this city, graduated during the past week from the High school in that city. Out of a class of over twenty he took one of the highest places, and his name is mentioned with honor in the class day programme. Will is a very promising young man, and will win for himself a prominent place in the world of business life.

—Miss Stella F. Sabin, the optician, is meeting with good success, and will prolong her visit in the city. She may be consulted at the Battle residence, corner of Jackson and Pleasant streets, from 12 to 3 o'clock p. m. Miss Sabin is highly recommended by some of the best families in Milwaukee, where she resides, and where she has operated with marked success. People in want of perfect fitting spectacles will consult their interests by calling on the lady.

—The rain last night put everything in good shape for the farmers, and hundreds of men were in the city at four o'clock this morning picking up anyone having the least experience in tobacco setting. The supply was hardly equal to the demand, and many farmers paid as high as three dollars for all their help. The ground is in just the right condition, and if the rain holds off until night, the crop will be pretty well started.

—Carpenters are at work putting a new roof on the building of Messrs. Rogers & Hutchinson, which was destroyed by fire on Thursday morning, and workmen are busy cleaning up the wreck and repairing the damage on the adjoining property. The buildings are all occupied, and one passing that way on Milwaukee street, would hardly recognize the fact that a fire on Thursday morning destroyed from $5,000 to $7,000 worth of property in the three buildings.

—Of Mrs. Hadselle, who will read at the entertainment to be given by the "Temperance Wideawakes" at Lappin's hall on next Wednesday evening, the Pittsfield (Mass.) Journal says: On the 17th, Mrs. Hadselle, a graduate of Blish school of elocution, Boston, gave some finely rendered recitations, easily carrying her audience with her. Her rendering of the Scotch dialect was remarkably fine, and of the Irish, absolutely perfect. She has a large number of recitations which she knows perfectly, and from which she can make selections that must suit the taste of all.

—The Edgerton Reporter—The city council met in adjourned session Monday evening, and allowed several bills. The specifications and contract for the new iron bridges were approved. The application for a pharmacists license by Wilson Bros. was also granted. The council voted to raise money by bonding the city, for building a city hall and the purchase of a fire engine.——Some men are close guessers. For instance, James McBride the other day attempted to deliver 250 pounds of hay to Alex. Taylor The actual weight of the hay was just 249½ pounds. Taylor bet the price of the load that there was not 150 pounds of it.

—The Newell Madison Square company continue to draw crowded houses at the opera house, which is sufficient evidence that this company is appreciated by our theatre-goers. Last evening "Fanchon, the Cricket," was presented and standing room was at a premium. The company is a good one—more evenly balanced than any of the troupes which have visited this city in a long time. The plays presented are popular, the admission—10 and 20 cents—reasonable, all of which tend to bring the company in great favor with our people. This evening will close the season, the company presenting the "Hidden Hand", a dramatization of Mr. E. D. N. Southworth's great New York Ledger story. Should the management conclude to return to Janesville at some future time, they will be cordially welcomed and given full houses for even a longer season than one week.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. Charles Noyes was held at her late home, corner of Madison and Ravine streets, first ward at two o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Jenk Ll. Jones, of Chicago, formerly pastor of All Souls church, this city, conducted the religious services, and the music was rendered by a quartet consisting of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Church and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Prichard. The attendance of sympathizing friends of the family was quite large. At the conclusion of the solemn service at the house the remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery for interment, Messrs. Eugene W. Lowell, J. L. Ford, Charles Dutton, H. Sexton, I. C. Brownell, I. A. Whiffin being the pall-bearers.

—A special dispatch from Watertown to the Milwaukee Sentinel, under date of June 19th, gives the following little episode in which Annie Sylvester, the lady bicyclist who amused the Janesville people at the rink last week, took the leading part: "On the train arriving here from the west was a young lady giving her name as Annie Sylvester. She boarded the train at Sparta and was to have gotten off at Tomah to change cars for Green Bay. Being asleep, however, she was carried by that place. Conductor Clayton offered to carry her to this city and then pass her back from here to Tomah. The young lady refused to leave the car upon her arrival here, which led to a scene between her and the railway official. She declared with great firmness that she intended to proceed to Milwaukee without paying her fare. Conductor Clayton, with the assistance of a brakeman, put the girl off the train by main force, and during the fracas the fractious passenger drew a seven shooter on the conductor, but he was quick enough to wrench the weapon from her before it could be fired. The young lady is a bicyclist, and hails from Chicago."

—It seems as though nothing goes without improvements in this enlightened age. The tallyho coach excursion is one of the schemes improved upon by the Kenosha club, which is now headed for this city. They started out with the idea of seeing the country in better style than could be possible in a railroad car. The scheme succeeded for a while, but as one of the ingenious minds of the party was looking the arrangement over, to see how near it approached perfection, he came to the conclusion that there was a much nicer way of doing it than to spend their time in one conveyance The club agreed with him, and now the coach is only used to drive through the principal towns. The passengers taking a train at the nearest way station, while the coachman drives across the country and meets them at their next stopping place. Verily, the inventive mind is at work; and no one need be surprised if they hear of a tally ho coach being hitched behind an express train, or left off entirely, the excursionists wearing badges to show that they really are a coaching club.

Heimstreet's Book of Recipes.

Mr. E. B. Heimstreet, proprietor of the New York drugstore, opposite the Gazette office, has just issued the sixth edition of "Heimstreet's Book of Recipes," This is a handsome little pamphlet of one hundred pages, nicely bound, containing over three hundred valuable household recipes given by ladies of this vicinity, and much other valuable information and advertisements. Mr. Heimstreet has issued 5,000 copies of this little book for free distribution among his customers. Every person making a purchase at the New York drugstore will be presented with one of these valuable recipe books, or they will be mailed to all applicants on receipt of 10 cents. Mr. Heimstreet has been in business in this city upwards of sixteen years, and is proprietor of one of the best arranged drug stores in the state. He takes great pride in compiling his book, and the information it contains makes it valuable to all housekeepers. The book has the "trade mark" of the "Gazette Printing Co." and is a fair sample of the pamphlet printing executed by this establishment. Call at Heimstreet's, buy a glass of soda, and ask for a ten cent book—you will get it.

BASE BALL.

Keokuks Win by a Score of 6 to 3 in Seven Innings.

There was rather a light attendance at the ball game yesterday, probably owing to the cloudy sky. The Mutuals went to bat but were sent out in one, two, three order and the Keokuks came in. Errors by Hubbel and Broughton gave them two runs, and so it went; errors by the home team and superior base running by the visitors keeping the tallies all on the Keokuk's side, except in the fourth, sixth and seventh, the Mutuals bringing in one man at each of these three innings. In the seventh, Hudson of the Keokuks was struck in the arm by a pitched ball and before his arm had been attended to, the heavy rain made it necessary to call game.

Meeting of Fourth of July Committee.

The committee of arrangements of the Fourth of July celebration held a meeting at the west side engine house last evening. The rain prevented a full attendance of the members, consequently no important business was transacted. The committee discussed the various features of the celebration, and it was evident from this discussion that all the arrangements were progressing satisfactory, and that the celebration would be a grand success.

Mr. J. B. McLean, of the amusement committee, state that a letter had been received by Captain Newman, from Captain Vaughn, of the Racine Guards, stating that his company would visit Janesville on the fourth and participate in the parades on certain conditions. This was considered and final action postponed until Tuesday evening.

Mr. E. S. Hayward reported the action of the Grand Army post, and it was the opinion of the committee that a liberal appropriation would be made to defray the expense of this organization in fitting up their tableau cars.

After further discussion of the little details, the committee adjourned until eight o'clock Tuesday evening, June 22d.

The Recovery of the Body of Mrs Humphrey.

The Edgerton Reporter of yesterday, gives the following account of the search and recovery of the body of Mrs. S. J. Humphrey, drowned on Friday evening of last week in Lake Koshkonong: "Searching parties immediatel started for the lake to look for the body of Mrs. Humphrey, but the high winds of Saturday prevented much being done. Hooks were made and on Sunday not less than 200 people were on and around the lake on the same mission. Quite a large section of the lake was raked, a number of charges of dynamite were fired but all to no purpose, her remains could not be found. The search was continued Monday and Tuesday with the same result. On Wednesday morning A. F. Renterskiold, living near Busseyville, found the oars used by the party on the shore of the bay a mile north of the point where Tointon and Miss Taylor came ashore. A further search among the rushes that skirt the shore and he came upon the missing remains of Mrs. Humphrey. From appearances the body must have lain in that condition several days and the theory advanced is that the same wind that floated the rescued pair to Bingham's point must have carried her body into this bay beyond. The remains were placed in a boat and conveyed to the Lake house, where a coffin awaited it. It was a sorrowful procession that moved from the Lake house late Wednesday evening, and conveyed to Fassett cemetery, the remains of a woman, who, on Friday afternoon, left her home well in body and happy in mind.

The deceased, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. VanKleek, was born in the town of Bristol, Dane county, and at the time of her death was 34 years and 9 months old. Aside from a husband she leaves a son Willie, by a former marriage, about 13 years of age. This is a severe affliction for the family and calls for sympathy and condolence from all."

The Weather.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 71 degrees above zero. Cloudy with southwest wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 85 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy, northwest wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 69 and 89 degrees above zero.

Eating is a Torture,

And sleep often a mere travesty of repose, to the dyspeptic. Appetite is correspondingly impaired by this most prevalent of maladies, and headaches, biliousness, constipation, poverty of the blood, loss of flesh and of vitality, and a thousand annoying and indescribable sensations are its concommitants. It is, moreover, the progenitor of numerous and formidable bodily disorders. Obstinate as it is, however, its complete eradication may be effected by the persistent use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, medicine which communicates both vigor and regularity to the organs of digestion and secretion, relaxes the bowels gently but thoroughly, enriches and purifies the blood, promotes the appetite, and gives tranquility to the nervous system. Persons of weakly constitution and physique, who use this superb tonic infallibly derive from it the stamina of which they stand so much in need, and it is invariably successful in remedying and preventing malarial diseases.

THE CURIOUS PALM CRAB.

Spice Island "Pigs"—How the Crabs Gather Nuts—Curious Yarns.

[New York Sun.]

"They have a curious crab in the Spice islands," continued the skipper. "They call it the palm crab. The scientific name is Birgas latro. I was visiting a friend there, and one night he asked if I wouldn't like to take a look at his pigs that were being fattened for the table. I said certainly, and we went to a sort of a pen made of bamboo, and what do you suppose he had? Crabs! Yes, these palm crabs. They were Spice island pigs, and I reckon some of them weighed a matter of twelve pounds, others five and six. They were curious things, and looked like half spider and half crab. If you have ever seen a hermit crab out of its shell, try to imagine one with its tail covered with hard plates, and about five times as large as anything you ever saw. Give it great red claws, throw in a lot of short hairs, bristles and feelers, and you have the palm crab.

"When I first saw one it reminded me of these fantastic figures that hop out of boxes when you raise the lid. The palm crabs are found in various countries of the east, and always in holes at the foot of palm trees, and to give you an idea of the amount of the nuts they eat, the Malays make a regular business of collecting the husks which they find in the nests and making them into mats and various articles of domestic use. You might wonder how the crabs get at the nuts; they climb the trees and twist them off with their big claws, and if you have ever tried to do the same with your hands you will appreciate the strength of the crab. Sometimes the nut is brought down, but often dropped, the crab following it down. It then tears off the husk with its big claws, always commencing at the end at which the two holes are placed, and when they come into view it brings one of its small rear claws into play and runs it in and picks out the meat. Sometimes they break the shell by hammering it on a rock.

"This friend of mine told me some curious yarns about the crab. Once, when a lot of natives were off on a crab-hunt, one of them nearly had his ears torn off. They went for them at night, and as one of the men took hold of a limb, or branch, of a cocoanut to give it a shake, a big crab that happened to be clinging to it grabbed him by the ear and nearly lifted him off the ground, and would have torn his ear off if some one had not killed the brute with a club. They are very fine eating, and are fattened on rice and various kinds of food, and sold just as we sell chickens here, or any other game. China is a great place for native patent medicines—that is, they rig up cures out of everything, from an elephant's tooth to a dragon's eye—and one of their prime cures is made out of a fossil crab that they work out and grind up into a powder. Soft shell is good enough for me."

Tackling a Devil Fish.

[New York Sun.]

Some years ago some devil fish appeared in a harbor where several schooners were lying, and the sailors, who were Swedes, and had never seen one of the fish before, saw them playing around in the harbor, and thought it would be a good joke to spear one. So they took a light skiff and a pair of old whale harpoons and ropes that belonged to the schooner and started out, and were joined by the other boats. In a short time one of the boats got alongside of a sea bat, and a rouser it was, too. When they struck it you'd have thought the whole bottom had been hit, and a second later that boat was rushing up the harbor at a rate she never went before. It was a blind lead, though, and the fish had to turn, and the skiff was jerked around so quickly that she half filled, and one man was tumbled overboard.

Up the channel they went, some yelling for the boat and others to cut the line, as it was evident that she would fill in a moment; but it happened that the only man who had a knife had been dropped overboard, and they couldn't get the line untied, they had to let it go. They said afterward they were about to jump overboard and let everything go, when the fish changed its course and headed right for one of the schooners. They had to jump then, anyhow, and, as they went overboard, the fish dived under the vessel, and the skiff struck her side with a crash, and was knocked all to pieces. The end plank, as they found out later, to which the line was made fast, went off with the fish. The men were picked up, and two days later the devil fish floated ashore. It measured about eighteen feet across, and it was estimated to weigh a ton.

"STRONG TO ENDURE."

[Miss Bisland in Times-Democrat.]

I list a low, sweet calling night and day,
Come hither, heart! Come swiftly down this way,
Outreach and longing have their limit—end,
And coldest sources to the sea's arms tend.

I list a low, sweet calling soon and late—
Why waver, heart? Why heed the claims of fate—
Give clinging lips for wrested ones of woe
And wreck the only being that we know?

To which my soul makes answer strong and clear,
Unsullied love is closer heaven, dear!
The fretted moth, bemocked of moon and star,
Outweareth wings that fierce flame-sweepings mar.

The eyriest snow amid air deserts drear,
'Scapes earthliest soil in her hard atmosphere,
Tho' cold and stern, is pure beyond compare,
Loosing her snow to lay her boulder bare.

The heaviest lot that destiny ordains
May through truth's beauteous force wear flowery chains.
And in the glow of that divineness pure
Learn nobler far than yield is—to endure.

WHY BUCHANAN NEVER MARRIED.

Particulars of a Sad Love Affair—A Very Unfortunate Misunderstanding.

[Ben: Perley Poore.]

Mr. Buchanan was regarded almost at the commencement of his congressional career, as a confirmed bachelor, his first and only love affair having had a sad termination. The lady's name was Ann Coleman, and she was the daughter of a proud, wealthy citizen of Lancaster. In 1820 Mr. Buchanan was elected to congress, and the next long session was continued far into July, when he returned home in the Baltimore stage, tired and dusty. After he had washed and changed his clothes, he started out for a short stroll, in his dressing-gown and slippers.

Miss Grace Hubley, sister-in-law to William Jennings, who resided on the corner of South Queen street, the terminus of the southwest angle, happening to be sitting in the parlor with all the windows open on account of the heat, noticing that Mr. Buchanan had returned, went to the door, and, passing the compliments of the evening, invited him in, with which he complied, and they seated themselves by a large open window and engaged in conversation. Not more than twenty minutes thereafter an anonymous note was handed in to Miss Coleman, stating that Mr. Buchanan was too tired to call on his affianced, but that he could call on and sit and chat with Miss Hubley.

On perusing the note Miss Coleman was naturally somewhat troubled, and her father insisted upon seeing it. His offended dignity was at once in arms, and within an hour the daughter was placed in the family carriage and on the way to Philadelphia to visit her sister, Mrs. Judge Hembill. Knowing the unrelenting nature of her father, and probably feeling hurt at the innuendo thus anonymously conveyed to her, although an intelligent and accomplished young lady, and very much attached to her bethroted lover, she became despondent, and in her despair took laudanum and was a corpse on the day following her reaching Philadelphia. Mr. Buchanan requested permission to attend the funeral as chief mourner, but was rudely refused. Being a man of ardent affection, and entirely devoted to his betrothed, Mr. Buchanan's mind was nearly unhinged at the sudden calamity which had befallen him, so much so, indeed, that his friends became uneasy, and Judge Franklin persuaded him to remain in his family a few days. He never forgot his early love, so sadly terminated.
